Angela:

Perhaps I can be of help since I'm on speaking terms with everything planted here.

1. The small bed planted at each building this spring are not impatiens. They are Calibrachoa. That is a little wimp that lies quietly not bothering anyone. They come in 22 different colors which of course, allows each board member to choose two.
2. The impatiens by the office are one of many in the impatient family which includes one edible one with the botanical name of Angelica archangelica. I never thought it should be planted here.
3. The 30 impatiens planted in front of the wall are New Guinea and are capable of growing rather tall. They are also the most expensive despite the sickly color. The foliage is nice so if the fail to bloom all is not lost.
4. The plants (Russian sage and pink coneflowers) for 1615 were transplanted to the corner berm because of their tendency to fall over when they had too much to drink. They were originally slated for 1515 but Mr. Corboy and another gentleman from Brickman switched them to 1615 because of the elevation.
The replacement was to be mixed Monarda that we have at 1405 and 1505. The choice was made by Janice at a meeting in the office with Krista. What we actually got was a brand new highbred double flower Menarda which does grow taller but it's a beautiful flower. I think this might have been an unintended mix-up because we were not charged more and new releases are more expensive for the first few years.

Before planting started and during planting Mr. Corboy and this other man, whose name I don't remember, spent time here evaluating the sun/shade ratio and they made three or four changes from the original plan including the addition of bleeding hearts. They also did not plant the golden Heucherella (Coral Bells) slated for 1415 because it is not a sun plant and I also suspect too expensive.

 Also, regarding 1615, if the perennial in question was recommended by Brickman, why would they recommend such a plant when it clearly does nothing to enhance entry. Thanks.

 Good Morning,

I will speak with Brickman and get back to you on this as soon as I have answers.

Sincerely,

Lisette, The impatiens that were planted at each front entry way look frail as compared to those planted in front of 1519 office window and at the front monument which have grown well. Can you please find out from Brickman why these flowers look so bad? With regard to 1615, there are some tall plants that are beginning to bloom. It looks like a jungle. They overpower the hedge and are at the same height as the tall grass. Please find out why on earth these perennials were planted and who made that decision. Finally, does the contract provide for cleaning and tending to these areas? There are dead plants throughout and up to the canopy windows. Thanks, Angie
